

What are the basic componets of an NMEA 2000 network?

Every NMEA 2000 network requires a power source or powertap, a backbone or trunk line with a terminator at each end, and two or more NMEA 2000 products connected with drops from the trunk line. You "tee" off of the backbone with drop cables to the individual products.

Online URL:

<https://www.maretron.com/wp-content/phpkbv96/article.php?id=460>